Webhosting continues on Bluehost.com, which provides excellent customer service. Web hosting is purchased for two year cycles and will be up for renewal next year at a cost of around $170. Web hosting is currently purchased by Destiny Crider on Visa and then reimbursed from SAS.

The Socarchsci.org web domain is current and up for renewal in August of 2011.

No major overhauls for web site are planned at the current time and updates are made on request of various board members to reflect updates in content. This is mostly done for annual membership renewal, recent bulletin pdfs, and conference announcements.

Summary statistics are available from Bluehost on website hits. Below is a chart of monthly access for the last year. The number of hits is remaining fairly consistent with peak times around October and November.

The SAS listserv continues to be a primary portal for distribution of information to membership. There are 277 non-digest and 40 digest subscriptions to the listserv. I am not able to cross-reference whether all subscribers are paid members, but given the current numbers, most likely the majority are subscribers. Several months ago there was a problem with the listserv bouncing subscribers from the list, but this problem seems to have been solved. If any member has not been receiving listserv communications, it will be necessary to subscribe again through the SAS Web page. There are on average one to three messages per day submitted to the list.

SAS blog and Wiki have been discussed and beta versions are in development. I am awaiting formal requests from administrators of those portals before creating links directly from the SAS Web pages. I do my best to update the web site within three days of receiving update requests.

The annual change in board membership should be submitted to me with specific details for changes as soon as possible to keep SAS contact information current.

Any web submissions can be submitted via email at destiny.crider@asu.edu
