

SAS Bulletin Editor annual report

Carmen Ting

Editorial board

It is with pleasure to announce that Dr Francesc Conesa (Catalan Institute of Classical Archaeology – ICAC) will join the editorial board, taking over the position as the Associate Editor for Remote Sensing and Prospection. The bulletin is still looking to fill two positions: Associate Editor for Archaeogenetics and Associate Editor for Geoarchaeology.

Changes to the bulletin

With the support from the bulletin editorial board and SAS Executive Board, we have decided to reduce the bulletin frequency from four to three issues. Two of the three issues will continue to feature the latest research in archaeological science research, whereas the last issue of the year will be dedicated to exhibit the research of the winners of SAS awards. All content will be available online.

Cooperation with the SAS social media

The bulletin is expected to work closer with our social media team to maximising the exposure of the SAS.
